Alexa Actionable Conversational Skill Voice technologies is an advanced version of the typical voice assistant, Amazon Alexa. Alexa Actionable Conversational Skill (AACS) allows third party developers to create actions that can be performed using a natural language in a conversational manner. By introducing a voice assistant like Amazon Alexa, we are able to fulfill a user's desire and provide the most intuitive, convenient and natural experience to perform voice-activated tasks, such as ordering a pizza, playing music and playing games, among others. Its acceptance worldwide, both among the general public and tech-savvy individuals, is incredible. Alexa has become part of the daily life of many people, allowing them to perform easily different activities such as a hands-free control of the TV, set the thermostat to a desired temperature, or even make a greeting or call a loved one with one simple command. Create Interactive Voice Apps with AI Platforms The AI platform layer acts as an API layer between a developer and the Alexa Voice Service (AVS). It provides developers with a platform that allows them to access, analyze, interpret and apply customer information and data to improve their end products. Its core mission is to extend the reach of voice technology and empower developers to create responsive and innovative voice apps using conversational capabilities, natural language understanding and statistical machine learning.
