from Norway. The movie is about a former commando who is in his 40s and now struggling to stay afloat, still a family man but now most of his friends are dead and he is having trouble finding his way back into society. The movie has to do with narcotics and has a very gritty feel to it. I don't know who the director is, but the cinematography is really good, including the scenes where the ex-commando is looking for a job. He is supposed to apply to work in Norway, but he goes to Finland instead, but the movie is set in Norway. The movie is great! The ex-commando is quite entertaining - not too hard to understand, but definitely realistic and very sympathetic. He is rather ordinary in all senses of the word, just someone who went to war and has a lot of problems trying to come back to society, which is a strong part of the film. The rest of the film is about the ex-commando trying to find a way of making money, eventually getting into the drug trade and everything falling apart after that. It is gritty and very violent and I recommend it. There are only a few people in the cast who have any talent and are doing their best with what they have, and these are the best parts of the movie, so definitely watch it! Superb movie. 2 of 2 people found this review helpful. Was this review helpful to you?
